Ice Queen
By: Alejandra Matias

the wind blowing through her hair at night her eyes sparkling with the shape of the moon inside, tears falling her white dress floating her skin cold as ice her pail was so pale as the sky her shadow dark moving towards the end of this world each step she took was one more step closer towards her dream (come true)
her soul so cold